What are the differences between Light and Pro Versions?

≈CAN$43

The Light edition is designed for home users who need a simple, highperformance file manager. It includes all the essential features of the Pro edition, without a lot of the more complex "power-user" functionality.

≈CAN$78

The Pro edition is designed for power users who want to get the most out of their computer. It has all the features of the Light edition, plus it expands upon the complexity and configurability to give you the ultimate file manager solution for Windows.

- If you're not sure which version is right for you, you can switch back and forth freely between Pro and Light during the 30-day evaluation period using the Licence Manager.
- If you'd like to give the Pro edition a better test, you can request a free 60 day evaluation. And if you buy the Light version, you can upgrade to Pro later for only the difference in price (* Applies to same major version only).

Advanced Search

The advanced search lets you find files by attributes and metadata.

Here the search is for images modified within the past two years that are at least 1280x1024 pixels in size.

Flat View<sup>TM</sup>

Flat View™ lets you display the contents of all sub-folders at once.

This is particularly useful for organizing files with a complicated folder structure

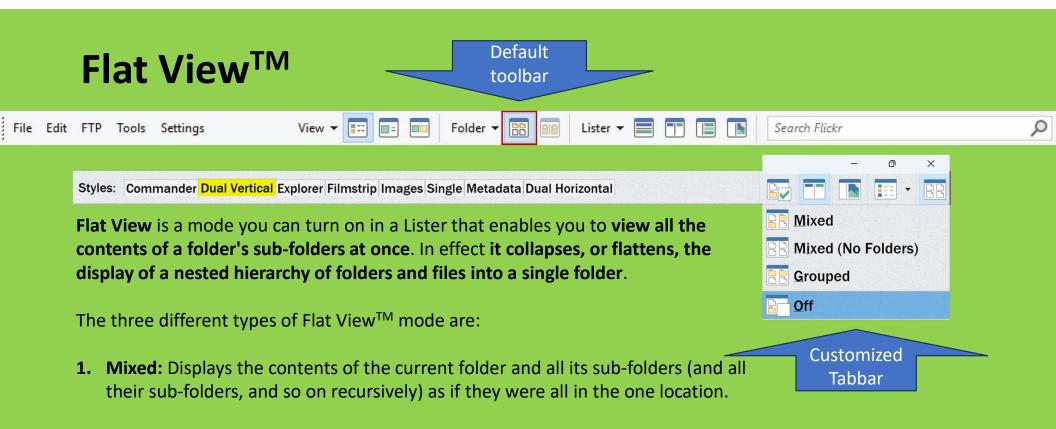

Also displayed are some of the many picture information columns you can add to the file display.

Why I chose Directory Opus over all other Windows/File Explorers

- As you know from my presentation How to get paid software for free daily ... totally legally!, I test a lot of software, and I was looking for a way to sort them and get better and quicker access to them.
- At the same time, I was looking for a way to replace the Windows Start menu, which was too limited for my needs.
- Looking at Directory Opus, I discovered that you can create quick-link buttons not only to your favourite directories and files, including media files, but also to websites, and most importantly for me, to installed programs on your computer, which is exactly what I was looking for!
- I also discovered the file name color coding feature ...
- ... the toolbars, especially the Tabbar ...
- ... the customization possibilities...
- ... and the Flat View™ functionalities ...

- 2. Mixed (No Folders): Displays all the files in the current folder and all sub-folders as if they were all in the one location. Sub-folders themselves are hidden from the display.
- 3. Grouped: Displays the contents of all sub-folders as a tree hierarchy.

The Three Directory Opus Customization Tools

- 1. The Customize dialog
- 2. The Preferences dialog

3. The Images (sub-directory)

All images used for customizing Directory Opus are located under C:\Program Files\Directory Opus\Images.

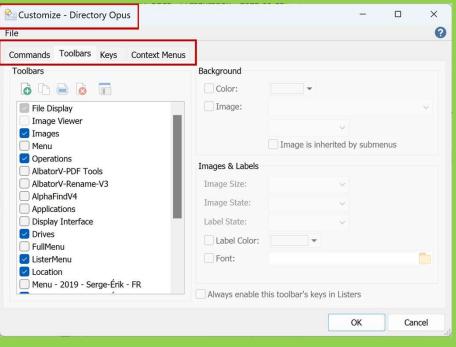

Make a backup copy of that particular images directory in case of a Windows crash ...

The "Customize..." Dialog

This is where almost all the options that control the Opus toolbars can be found.

Quick Tip

Note: By default, the dialog opens on the Toolbars tab.

The Customize... and the Preferences... dialogs can be found under the Settings Tab, but they are also accessible by clicking the Icon on the upper left corner of the interface.

The Customize Contextual Menu

The Customize Toolbar and its Contextual Menu are used for customizing the toolbars.

Right-clicking on a blank space on any toolbar will bring up the Toolbars contextual menu.

If the "Lock the Toolbars" option is turned on, the toolbars in the Lister will be Quick Tip locked to prevent them from being dragged (repositioned) or accidentally floated.

Context Menus: This is where various context menus can be edited. The context menus here are for user interface elements like the column header in a details mode file display, the taskbar icon and so on.

The Toolbars & the Different Types of Resources

Directory Opus offers the possibility to link directly to resources through toolbars objects. Links can be made to:

- 1. Directories
- 2. Files (word/media)
- 3. Websites (or website links saved on your computer)
- 4. Installed programs/apps

The Editing the Toolbar section of the manual explains in details how to add the different types of objects to toolbars. https://www.gpsoft.com.au/help/opus12/inde x.html#!Documents/Editing the Toolbar.htm

How to add a Button (Files/Directories/Websites/Programs/Apps)

Method 1

- 1. Go to Settings > Customize...
- 2. Right click on the toolbar of your choice.
- 3. Click on New and choose New Button.

- 2. Drag to the toolbar of your choice the:
  - Word file (Word, PDF, etc.)
  - Media file (MP4, MP3, etc)

  - C:\Program Files; or
  - C:\Program Files (x86)
- Drag the icon from the Desktop
- 3. Right click on the created button, and choose Edit to fine tune it.
- 4. Done!

Drop-down Menus

There are two different types of drop-down button.

	Customize
	New	>		New Button
-	Float		9	New Menu
	Toolbars → ✓ Lock the Toolbars		·	New Menu Button
				Label
 				Spacer
	Close			٩	പ്

¶ A drop-down Menu is a button that displays a menu, and nothing more. Clicking the button makes the menu appear.

- A drop-down Menu Button is like a regular button combined with a menu. It has two distinct parts:
- 1. The larger part—the label—acts like a regular button. It can have a function defined for it, and clicking the button part runs the function.
- 2. The smaller part—the arrow glyph—displays the drop-down menu. Clicking the arrow part of the button drops the menu down.

To add a brand new sub-menu (within which you can then add further items) to a toolbar, do any of the following:

- 1. From the Customize dialog's Commands tab, expand the New category, then drag New Menu (or New Menu Button) out of the list and drop it on the toolbar. This will add the menu at the location you dropped it.
- Right-click the empty space at the end of a toolbar and choose New > New Menu (or New Menu Button) from the context menu. This will add the button to the end of the toolbar.
- Right-click an existing button or menu and choose Insert New > New Button (or New Menu Button) to insert the new menu immediately after the one you clicked on.

Once the new menu is added, you can edit it (by double-click or right-click), and if you open it with a left-click you can add items inside of it in the same way as the top-level toolbar.

Folder Tab Controls from the Folder Options Button

The Folder Options / Folder Tabs menu ( 2 ) in the default toolbars contains a number of commands used to control tabs:

- New Tab for Current: Opens the current folder in a new tab.
- New Tab for Parent: Opens the parent of the current folder in a new tab.
- New Tabs for Selected: Opens any selected folders in new tabs (for example, selecting three sub-folders in the current folder and run this command, would result in three new tabs being opened showing those folders).
- New Tabs for Parents: Opens the parents of any selected items in new tabs. This is useful in a collection (e.g. Find Results) where the parent of the selected items is not necessarily the current folder.
- Tab Groups: This sub-menu lets you access any tag groups you have defined.
- Close Tab: Closes the current folder tab.
- Undo Close Tab: Re-opens the most recently closed folder tab.

The Three Utility Panels

File Collections

- A file collection is a virtual folder that acts as a container for other files and folders.
- The items in a file collection do not need to be stored in the same physical folder—they can reside in other folders, on other disks, or even in other virtual file systems like FTP.
- When you add items to a collection they are not actually moved or modified at all—all Opus stores is a reference to the original file.
- Collections are also used by the flickr photo-sharing synchronization system to store references to your photos no matter where on your system they are physically located.

You can work with the files in a file collection (copy them, rename them, delete them, etc.) just like you would with the real files.

Directory Opus X Warning: Deleting files in a collection will delete the REAL files. To remove files from a collection without deleting them, use the Remove From Collection command. Don't ask to confirm this action again OK Cancel

Image Marking

- A common task is sorting through a bunch of digital photos, working out which ones to keep, which ones to upload, which ones to print, etc. The Image Marking feature in the standalone viewer can make this process very simple.
- Images you mark are automatically added to a file collection. Additionally, thumbnails of the images you've marked are shown in a separate panel in the viewer, and there are commands that make it easy to move around the marked images.
- If you want to take a break from your session you can simply close the viewer and come back to it later—all images that you've marked will be saved in the file collection. When you've marked one or more images and you close the viewer, Opus will automatically display the file collection for you in a new tab—you can change this behaviour in Preferences.

If the current image you're viewing is marked this is

indicated with a star icon

- To mark the current image in the viewer, simply push the M key (or click the Mark button on the toolbar).
- With the default configuration, a file collection will automatically be created based on the name of the image's parent folder.
- The marked image pane opens automatically on the left of the viewer window, showing thumbnails of the images you've marked. When this opens it automatically checks the collection for any images you may have already marked in a previous session.

How to Disable Images Toolbar in Thumbnail Mode

Some users find annoying the fact that the Image toolbar open up in Image mode (perhaps you just want to see the images, not edit them).

Question: How do I stop the images toolbar from opening automatically when I switch from details view to thumbnails view?

Answer: Go to Preferences > File Display Modes > Toolbars and turn off images in the Thumbnails field by clicking on None at the top of the drop-down menu.

Scripts

- Directory Opus is supported by a large community of users who create and share buttons and scripts that you can use to be more efficient and enhance your Windows experience overall.
- The Directory Opus Resource Centre
   Buttons/Scripts section lists over hundreds of scripts, including some for Directory opus to interact with common programs such as

   Everything, Dropbox, Calibre, Outlook, "Attach to Mail (directly or as zip) for Thunderbird", "Open Google Maps at Image's GPS Coordinates".
- Scripts can easily be embedded in toolbar buttons.

Scripts are easy to install but do follow the instructions given by their authors!

How to Save Different Layouts for Different Purposes

 A Lister Layout is a saved collection of one or more Listers that you can re-open at any time. Layouts are created when you save your currently open Listers as a set using the commands in the Settings / Lister Layouts menu.

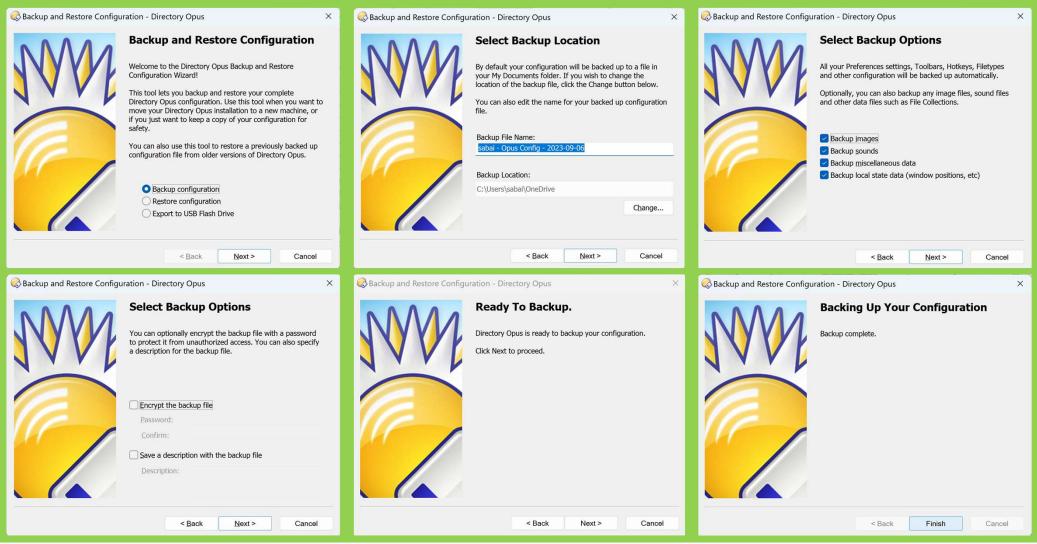

- The Edit Layouts command will open the Preferences dialog showing the Layouts and Styles / Layouts page. From this page you can view a list of all your saved layouts, rename them, re-order them, delete them, etc.
- The Save This Lister command saves only the currently active Lister, whereas the Save All Listers command saves all open Listers to the layout.

When you save a Layout, you can choose various options that will apply whenever that layout is reloaded:

Image Marking Shortcuts Keys

Image Marking Shortcut Keys

You can jump around the marked images by double-clicking their thumbnail. The marked image pane also lets you rename images by selecting their icon and pressing F2. The following keys relating to marking are also defined by default in the viewer:

- M / Insert: Mark / unmark the current image
- Ctrl + M: Show or hide the marked image pane
- Ctrl + Left: Jump to previously marked image
- Ctrl + Right: Jump to next marked image
- Ctrl + Up: Jump to first marked image
- Ctrl + Down: Jump to last marked image
- Ctrl + Space: Return from jump to last viewed image
- Shift + M: Exchange mark with previously marked image

These keys make it very easy to jump back and forth between images you've marked and your current "position" in the list of images.
