Scripting and automation for mere mortals

OTTAWA – Press release date WEDNESDAY March 4, 2020. The Ottawa PC Users' Group (OPCUG) invites the public to attend its upcoming Wednesday February 11th General Meeting to use scripting to take away the drudgery of repetitive tasks.

Following Alan German's presentation on computer programming in February, Chris Taylor will discuss techniques for automation and scripting.

Forget those confusing "write-only" programming languages like APL. There are plenty of ways mere mortals can take away the drudgery of repetitive tasks so they are done easily, consistently, and reliably.

All the techniques Chris will show require a minimum of learning, don't require that you spend a dime on a programming language/compiler, and can reward you with the ability to have more work done automatically by your computer.
