

From: Rogers <phustwit@rogers.com>
Sent: Monday, August 2, 2021 09:20
Subject: 📧 Welcome – Activate Your Rogers Email Now!

Dear User,

Due to a mandatory change in our system your in-coming Emails were placed on-hold due to lack of our upgrade which may leads to permanent delete of your account from our system data-base

Kindly take a minute to upgrade your account below:

You will be blocked from sending and receiving emails if not confirmed within 1-2 working days of receiving this automated mail.

UPGRADE NOW

To log in, you'll need your Rogers ID. This is usually your email address.

Sincerely,
The Rogers Mail Secure Team.

Why this is a fraudulent email:

1. Although the email address is from @rogers.com, the sender's name is questionable.
2. The grammar in the message is poor.
3. Hovering over the blue UPGRADE NOW button (deactivated in this document) reveals a strange web address that is not that of Rogers or Yahoo.
4. Do not be fooled by the genuine looking logo; it's very easy to copy and paste as was done in this document.